

DRAMATIC SCENE IN HALL-MILLS MURDER HEARING

Veteran Dies Under Assumed Name

MRS. JAMES GIBSON RAISED SELF FROM BED IN COURT ROOM TODAY TO IDENTIFY MRS. FRANCES HALL

Carried Into Court on Stretcher, State's Star Witness Tells of Seeing Mrs. Hall and Brother in Fatal Lane

FRANK MILLER WAS ALIAS OF TOM McNALLY

Driver of Death Car is Fined $25 for Not Stopping Auto

The name "Frank Miller" by which the young man who died Tuesday morning after sustaining fatal injuries by being struck by an automobile driven by Harry Trostle of Dixon, on the Lincoln Highway, about a half mile east of Dixon about 9:30 Monday evening as known, was an assumed name. This fact was brought out at the inquest conducted by Corner Frank M. Banker at the Staples-Moyer mortuary yesterday afternoon. The young man's real name was Thomas A. McNally, son of a prominent wholesale grocer of Youngstown, Ohio, it was learned.

The alias had been assumed when the young man, being attracted by the life of the followers of a traveling circus, left his home without notifying relatives and for some time traveled with the Miller Brothers 101 Ranch circus. This information was gleaned from the testimony of John F. Lerner, a brother-in-law, who arrived at noon yesterday and took charge of the remains, returning to Youngstown with the body last evening. McNally had served in the army during the late war but had not seen service overseas, having been stationed at a prison camp in Oklahoma.

Traced by Phone Call
Leaving his home more than a year ago without notifying his family, it was several days before any trace of him could be found. Through a friend of the young man, the brother-in-law learned that he had left Youngstown with the circus. Letters to the circus management failed to bring any information about McNally, the brother-in-law testified, he having assumed the name of Miller. Nothing was heard from him until last May when, while attending a party east of the city, he called his sister by long distance telephone. It was this act which led to the location of relatives by tracing the call through the local telephone office.

Keller at Inquest
State's Attorney Mark C. Keller conducted the examination of the witnesses before the jury. John F. Lerner, the brother-in-law, was the first to be called and was followed by Michael F. Martin, employer of the deceased, and with whom he was walking when struck by the car. Dr. George P. Powell, who attended the young man at the hospital; Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber and Chief Deputy Sheriff Fred A. Richardson, who were the first to reach the scene of the accident; Leonard A. Wolf, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Trostle, occupants of the car, testified before the inquest. Wolf was a fellow worker with the deceased and came to this locality from Chicago with him.

Mr. and Mrs. Trostle gave graphic descriptions of the accident Monday night when McNally was struck and fatally injured. Both were of the opinion that they were about to be stopped by highwaymen, when they noticed the two men on the brick pavement ahead of them. At the completion of the testimony, the jurors deliberated but a short time, returning a verdict finding that death was due to concussion of the brain, contributory to shock and injuries sustained by being accidentally struck by an automobile driven by Harry Trostle on the Lincoln Highway in Dixon township, Lee county.

Trostle Fined $25
Harry Trostle appeared before Justice J. O. Shaulis this morning at 9 o'clock and entered a plea of guilty to a charge of failing to stop after striking a pedestrian on a public highway and paid a fine of $25 and costs. The charge was preferred against Mr. Trostle by Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber Tuesday evening after the former had come to the police station and confessed to having struck the man. In the meantime he was at liberty under bonds of $500.

Belt Line Railroad to Float $5,000,000 Bonds
Washington, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The Indiana Harbor Belt Line sought permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission today to issue $5,000,000 in bonds which the New York Central proposed to guarantee. The funds will be used to refund another bond issue and to pay cost of betterments.

FIRST HEAVY SNOW BLANKETS MID WEST; CAUSED NUMEROUS MINOR AUTO ACCIDENTS HERE

Seven Inches of Snow Had Fallen at 12 O'clock Today

The first real snow storm of the winter swept over this community Wednesday afternoon and evening and today, depositing a total of seven inches of the beautiful on the ground up until noon today, at which hour it was still falling.

The heavy wet blanket made traffic conditions very unfavorable, and numerous reports of cars skidding into curbs in the city and ditches in the country were received, some of the accidents resulting in damage to the machines, but with no injury to occupants.

Leake's Auto Wrecked.
T. Wilbur Leake had a narrow escape from injury late yesterday afternoon near Byron on state route No. 2, when his Buick coupe skidded off the paved highway into a ditch. Mr. Leake was en route to Rockford to attend the shrine meeting and as he neared Byron, decided that the storm was becoming too violent, and attempted to turn around and return to Dixon. In so doing, the car skidded as he was making the turn and rolled over into a ditch striking a big tree. The top was badly damaged and the machine was badly wrecked, but the driver escaped without injury. The car had to be towed to Dixon late last night.

Traffic Light Off.
To lessen danger of accidents on the slippery hills in the business part of the city Commissioner of Public Health and Safety Charles E. Miller last night ordered the traffic lights on Galena avenue turned off. It was thought that compelling cars to stop on the slippery hill would cause more mishaps than by letting traffic take care of itself.

GENERAL IN MID-WEST
Chicago, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Snow-laden clouds roiled the central west today and moved eastward before winds that brought record breaking November snowfalls.

Corn belt temperatures went down to turn rain into snow and flurries became small blizzards.

Storm warnings were displayed on all the Great Lakes except Ontario as the storm center swept today into Illinois from the southwest, where it took snow and freezing temperatures. The mercury hung around 20 degrees in parts of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

The passing of the wave left St. Louis with more than five inches of snow by nightfall last night and there were falls of as much as six inches in Illinois.

WEEK'S CAMPAIGN AGAINST RATS IS BEING CONSIDERED

City Council May Back Drive Against Rodents in Dixon

Representatives of the state department of public health, who have made a careful investigation of health conditions in Dixon during the past few weeks, have highly complimented the city and the city's health department.

There has been a marked scarcity of disease found in the city and sanitary conditions have been pronounced as being above the average.

Every store where food products are offered for sale, restaurants and eating houses and milk depots have been visited by the inspectors. In some instances, it is reported that the pure food laws are not being complied with strictly, but these conditions are to be remedied at once.

While the inspectors have complimented the city on its healthy condition one recommendation has been made, with a view of bettering health conditions in Dixon, and this matter was presented to the city council by Commissioner George Campbell. The inspectors in making their tours of investigation have found that the business district of the city is infested with rats and have advised the adoption of some plan to rid the city of these rodents.

Rat-Killing Week.
"It is not to be understood that Dixon is over run with rats or that the condition is any worse than any other year," Commissioner Campbell stated to the council in presenting the matter. "But I am satisfied that several hundred rats could be done away with if the council would get back of such a movement."

The commissioner suggested that as a preventative measure that a week be set aside and a wholesale campaign of eradication of rodents be carried on. Such a campaign should be given the greater amount of attention in the business district, where at this time of the year the rats travel from one building to another through a series of tunnels, the commissioner stated today.

"Dixon has the name of being a clean and healthy city in which to live and this should not be taken as a warning meaning that there are more rodents here than before, but simply as a plan whereby to rid the city as much as possible with the present generation of rats, thus adding to the high standard of public health which the city enjoys."

Youths Who Held Up Engineer are Held to Grand Jury

Perry Walker, Rock Falls, and Willie Hedrick, St. Louis, were being held for the Whiteside county grand jury by a Sterling justice, in lieu of $5,000 bond, each. They are charged with robbery with a gun at night time.

W. W. Grant, engineer on the C. & B. & Q. railroad has identified both men as being members of a trio which held him up and robbed him of a gold watch and $30 in cash last week.

Walker must also pay a fine of $300 and spend 60 days in county jail for violation of prohibition laws. He pleaded guilty to the dry law charges today.

QUEEN MARIE TO CURTAIL HER VISIT: ILLNESS OF KING HAS BROUGHT CHANGE IN HER PLAN

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Queen Marie will go direct to New York when she leaves Louisville tonight and will sail for home on the first available steamer.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Queen Marie today cancelled all functions scheduled for the remainder of her tour. The cancellation will be effective until the Queen has definite and official word from Bucharest that the condition of King Ferdinand is not as serious as reported last night.

TWO DAYS REMAIN TO GET GOLD FROM MYSTERIOUS SPEED

Readers Warned to Look for Buick Car and its Driver

But two days remain for readers of The Telegraph to get Mysterious Speed's gold, so everyone is warned to watch for the Buick car tomorrow and be prepared to repeat the following slogan correctly, at the same time displaying a copy of this evening's issue of The Telegraph: "Tardon, please, you see that Mr. Speed, representing The Telegraph, a paper that should be read to people by the want ads. Where is the Master Buick Car?"

The snow storm did not interfere with Speed and he issued the following statement today: "Now folks, take your time, and don't be too sure of yourselves, for there is where most people lose out by missing a word. Mrs. Beler answered the door with The Telegraph in hand, but as the paper was held down by her side I did not see it until I had introduced myself. I will call at her home again this week. Many people have received a Purty home-made chocolate from the Purty confectionery and Rexall Cigars from the Public Drug Co. This feature was brought about by B. A. Marriot, proprietor of the Rexall Drug & Book Store. It has been impossible for me to get over to Steward, but I will make every effort to get there before the week closes."

Dixon Nurses Made Good Marks in Test

The Dixon Public Hospital received a report yesterday from the Department of Registration & Education at Springfield stating that 849 applicants took the registered nurse examination held in Chicago on Sept. 30-Oct. 1.

The highest average made was 94.9. Miss Garland Heinmiller and Miss Agnes Florence of Dixon, graduates of the Katherine Shaw Betha Training followed this mark closely. Miss Heinmiller receiving an average of 93.7, and Miss Florence receiving an average of 93.4. This indeed speaks well for the Katherine Shaw Betha Training School for Nurses and Dixon is proud of the averages made by Dixon nurses.

JOLIET WOMAN BANKRUPT

Chicago, Nov. 18.—(AP)—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed by Anna J. Hastings, Joliet, Ill., liabilities $4837, assets $2825.

Five Lynchers Get Jail Sentences in Douglas, Ga.

Douglas, Ga., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Nine members of a mob that removed Dave Wright, a white man, from the county jail last August 27 and lynched him, are to spend terms in prison varying from four years to life. They were sentenced yesterday after pleading guilty to murder.

The case revolved around the only recorded lynching in Georgia in 1925. A life sentence for participation in mob violence was imposed for the first time in the state's history.

Robbers Got Trunk Full of Money this Morning
Chicago, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Robbers jumped on a money truck of the Fair Department Store today, and pushed off a trunk containing $3,500 with which they escaped in a waiting automobile.

"KING" BENJAMIN MAY DIE BEFORE LITIGATION OVER HOUSE OF DAVID IS ENDED; BELIEF

CLINT MYERS TO BE CHIEF AID TO OGLE CO. SHERIFF

Popular Selection by Sheriff-Elect is Announced Today

Oregon—When Samuel Good, Ogle county's sheriff-elect assumes his office on December 6, Supervisor Clint Myers of Lafayette township will be his chief deputy, according to an announcement made here today. The new official could not have made a more popular choice, according to the general view expressed here today. In addition to serving 12 years on the county board, Mr. Myers has been sufficiently active in agricultural circles to win the confidence of Ogle's farm population.

Mr. Myers will succeed George D. Banning, who has served in the sheriff's office for the past 12 years, four as a deputy and the balance as chief assistant to Sheriff Sheridan N. Dodson, present incumbent.

Banning Popular Officer.
During the war period and through his entire career as an Ogle official, Deputy Banning has proved a most efficient officer. He had established a reputation of being absolutely fearless in his warfare on law-breakers. With his retirement and that of Sheriff Dodson on December 6, Ogle county will lose two of the most popular law enforcement officers ever on duty at Oregon.

Funeral of Elwood W. Osborne Friday

The remains of Elwood Wesley Osborne, a resident of Dixon for years, arrived last evening, accompanied by members of his family, who went to Omaha to bring the body back to this city. Mr. Osborne passed away Monday night at 9:55, death following a stroke which he suffered Friday noon.

Mr. Osborne was born in Harrisburg, Pa. May 25, 1856. He left Dixon about 20 years ago, going to St. Louis, where his wife preceded him in death. He later moved to Omaha where he resided up to the time of his death. Five children survive him as follows: Arthur of Mt. Morris, Clarence of Dixon, Mrs. Irene Gail of Dixon, Mrs. Carrie Williams of Detroit, Mich., and Wesley of St. Louis. Funeral services will be conducted from the Preston chapel tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. W. W. Marshall, pastor of the Baptist church officiating and with interment in Oakwood. The complete obituary will be published later.

Offer Reward for Savanna Merchant

A reward of $100 has been offered at Savanna for the discovery of George Salzer or the finding of his body. Salzer was hunting last Wednesday, and was last seen in a boat on the Mississippi on his way home.

An oar, which has been identified as one belonging to his boat, was found along the shore on an island on the Iowa side of the river. One hundred sticks of dynamite were found Friday afternoon in the hope of bringing his body to the surface of the river.

Faces Criminal Charge and Suit for State to Close Colony

Benton Harbor, Mich., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Extended litigation regarding the House of David appeared possible today.

Attorneys for Benjamin Purnell, leader of the cult, who was captured in a surprise raid on the colony yesterday, say their defense of Purnell against charges of individuals and the state of Michigan will be carried to the highest courts.

H. T. Dewhurst, former California superior court judge, now a member of the colony, and W. J. Barnard of Paw Paw, chief counsel, say that Purnell went into seclusion four years ago, because he could not obtain a fair trial.

The "king" was resting among his people today. Bail of $120,000 was given on charges of criminal assault preferred by two former girl members of the colony. The bond was signed by eight local merchants.

H. S. SQUADS TO BE GUESTS OF GYROS MONDAY

"Duke" Dunne Secured as Speaker: Great Time Expected

The Dixon high school football squads of both the light and heavy-weight divisions together with their coaches, will be guests of the Dixon Gyro club Monday evening at 6:30 in the gymnasium at St. Luke's Episcopal church. The grid warriors and their coaches will enjoy the dinner and then listen to an address by a former Michigan football star.

"Duke" Dunne, son of the former Gov. Dunne, a star on the Michigan University team in 1921 and at the present time line coach at the Northwestern university in Chicago will be the speaker. He is one of the foremost line generals in college football of the present time and it was through the efforts of Dr. L. R. Evans, a member of the alumni association of Northwestern university and a leader in Gyro club activities, that the notable visitor has been secured for this occasion.

Vivid Picture of Dead Warden's Wounds Given

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 18.—(AP)—A vivid picture of the knife-hacked body of Peter Klein, deputy warden of the New Stateville prison, slain in the escape of seven prisoners, six of whom now are on trial for murder, was given to the jury today by Dr. W. R. Fletcher, prison physician.

Warden Klein's body bore five wounds, most of which would have been fatal, and three skull fractures, testified Dr. Fletcher. Death actually was caused by a stab through the heart, he said.

That Mr. Klein might have been tortured, rather than killed immediately, Dr. Fletcher indicated when he testified that the wounds apparently were caused at intervals and with the body in different positions.

One of the seven who escaped remains at large.

To Discontinue "Too Late to Classify" Ads in Telegraph

Commencing with the issue of Monday, November 22, a new policy governing the classified advertising section of the Evening Telegraph will become effective. From that date there will be no "Too Late to Classify" section. All classified advertisements will appear on the regular classified page.

Court House, Somerville, N. J., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Jane Gibson raised herself on a hospital bed in court here today to point to Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brother, Willie and Henry Stevens, as three persons she saw near the spot where the bodies of Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills were found.

The woman farmer, introduced by the state as an eye witness of the double killing, was brought to the court in an ambulance and began her testimony with a nurse and a physician attending her.

She spoke in a low voice at first, but when she finished direct examination occupying twenty-five minutes, she could be heard clearly. Her story was substantially the same as that she had previously told except that she first said she saw Henry Stevens at the spot after she had previously seen Mrs. Hall and Willie Stevens in a sedan parked in De Russes's Lane.

Didn't Name "Other"
"I seen a man and another man," she said, when she told of seeing Henry Stevens. She was not asked to identify the "other man." She had previously said that she saw Henry Carpenter at the scene, but the state's representative warned her not to say who the "other man" was in her testimony today. Henry Carpenter is under indictment, but is not on trial with his three cousins.

She said that she saw Willie Stevens in an automobile but not at the spot where the mumble of voices was heard. Mrs. Hall was described as present later wringing her hands. Mrs. Hall was asked to remove her hat, which she did, as the witness was held up to make her identification.

The witness, who has been sick in a Jersey City hospital, was brought to the court house in an ambulance. The bed awaited her in the court room.

The white capped nurse accompanied Mrs. Gibson and stood by as she was transferred to a bed, resting directly in front of the jury.

Sworn By Bible
The jury was brought in and court opened. "The state produces the witness Jane Easton and asks to have her sworn," Prosecutor Simpson announced. A Bible was carried to her cot, the covers drawn back so that she might touch it.

Mrs. Gibson told how she had been robbed of corn. She heard a wagon stop, she said, and suspecting it as being the thieves, she saddled her mule and went to follow the wagon which had driven away.

Mrs. Gibson in a tired voice told of having seen Mrs. Hall and Willie Stevens at the road near the scene of the killing. Her head began rocking back and forth on the pillow and attendants stood up and began taking her pulse.

"I saw a white woman and a man, she testified. She didn't have no hat on."

Learned Man Was Stevens
"The woman was Mrs. Hall and I afterward learned that the man was Willie Stevens."

The defendants gazed on the speaker and heard her feeble replies with little show of motion.

"When you came down the lane did you hear anything?" asked Simpson. "Yes, I hear voices."

"Men's voices or women's voices?" "I heard men's voices and women's voices. They seemed to be coming near all the time."

"When they came nearer, could you make out what they were saying?"

Mentioned "Letters"
"They were saying something about some letters. I heard a man say—'you let me go', then I heard a holler. Next

Beg Your Pardon
Through error it was reported to The Telegraph yesterday that Speed, in his search for someone to repeat his slogan in the proper way and place, had been relieved of some cash in Ashton when John D. Charters jumped him with a copy of The Telegraph and the proper words. Mr. Charters won the candy and cigar prize but the fact that he was in the store prevented him from collecting the cash prize. It is only during the shopping tours in the Dixon stores that Speed pays cash when caught.

Speed is still looking around for some one to give his money to. Some of The Telegraph subscribers certainly will collect before long.

I saw a flash light and saw something bright in the hands of one of the men."

The witness said she saw two faces when the flashlight was on. "Did you identify those faces?" "Yes."

"Was the man's face that of Henry Stevens?" "Yes, it was Henry Stevens."

"Was the other face that of Willie Stevens?" "No."

"Did you hear anything?" "Heard Shot Fired"

"The light went out and I heard a shot, something heavy fell and I ran for the mule. There were two women there, the one began to cry: 'Oh, Henry', while the other was screaming: 'Oh my, oh my' so terrible, so loud."

"I ran for the mule after the first shot. Then there was scream after scream. I just got to my mule, when bang, bang, bang, I heard three shots. I stumbled over a stump and the mule and I ran for home. When I put the mule in the barn, I got my foot wet and discovered I had lost my moccasin."

"I went in the house and sat down. Then I thought I was foolish to run away and I went back to hunt for my moccasin. The moon was out bright. I walked around the stump where my mule was tied and a screech owl began hooting. I jumped up and listened and then moved slowly through the bushes."

Saw Woman Bending
"I saw a woman with white hair bending down fixing something and crying, the same woman I saw early in the evening. It was Mrs. Hall."

Senior Case took up the cross examination.

Severe Cross Examination
"Do you remember that one night during the investigation after you told your experience you went through De Russes's Lane on your mule, David and Totten following you in a car?" "Yes."

"You were requested to do what you had done on the night of the tragedy?" Simpson objected and was overruled.

"They didn't ask me to do nothing," replied the witness. "I went over the same thing."

"Was that at night?" "Yes, it was the night after Hayes had been arrested. I know no boys was there."

Clifford Hayes was arrested in the first investigation, questioned and released.

Case asked that all of the reply except the word "yes" be stricken out. Simpson opposed and Case won.

Saw No Flashes.
"Did you not tell Totten and David that you saw the flashes and heard the shots while riding your mule in De Russes's Lane?" Case asked.

"No, there was no flashes." Again Case was successful, this time striking all of the answer but the word "no."

"Did you not tell them (the original investigators) that one reason you returned to the scene that night was because you lost your moccasin?" "I don't remember."

"Isn't it a fact that you went back to the scene the next day?" "No."

"The attempt to find your moccasin had nothing to do with your going back to the scene?" "It was one reason."

The witness was asked if she knew George Sipel and she answered she did.

She Made Proposal.
"Do you remember making a proposal to him, for consideration of a certain amount of money from you, if he would tell a certain story?" "Yes," answered Mrs. Gibson as Simpson objected. During the argument between the lawyers, Mr. Gibson kept talking, explaining that the talk referred to concerned the sale of a mule.

The defense asked the witness "did you not offer Sipel $100 if he would corroborate your story?" "Why should I offer him $100. He asked how much I wanted for a pair of mules and I said $100." Mrs. Gibson also denied she had asked him to corroborate any part of her story.

"Do you remember testifying at the preliminary hearing Aug. 1926 in this court house, saying then I saw something glitter and I saw a man's face?" "Yes."

Carpenter Called.

OLD MASTERS

When I consider how my light is spent
Ere half my days, in this dark world and wide,
And that one talent which is death to hide
Lodged with me useless, though my soul more bent

To serve wherewith my Master, and present
My true account, lest He returning chide—
Doth God exact day labor, light denied?
I fondly ask: But Patience to prevent

That murmur, soon replies: God doth not need
Either man's work, or His own gifts; who best
Bear His mild yoke, they serve Him best: His state

Is kingdom; tho' his hands at His bidding speed
And post o'er land and ocean without rest:
They also serve who only stand and wait.

Open Windows Bring Good Health

A campaign for open windows in sleeping rooms and more fresh air in schools, churches, workshops and other places where people congregate is being sponsored by national and state tuberculosis associations during the month of November.

"Open Windows Bring Good Health" and "Health Blows Through the Open Window" are slogans on two attractive posters that have been received here from the National Tuberculosis Association.

"Advantages of open windows and fresh air are so well known today that it would hardly seem necessary to remind people of the importance of this," said R. G. Paterson, secretary of the Ohio Public Health Association.

"However, we are inclined to become careless about this matter and a campaign such as is being conducted now by the tuberculosis societies of the country serves a very timely reminder.

"Within a few weeks we will have with us again the little Christmas Seals to remind us of the nation-wide campaign that is being waged against tuberculosis. Let us begin now to practice the things which promote good health. Get all the fresh air you can. It will mean less sickness, less absenteeism from work and school and a healthier and happier people."

The WOMAN'S DAY

By ALLENE SUMNER

Is there any normal man or woman who is not interested in the subject of marriage? Because the answer is "no," there is a new book on the market—511 pages worth of it—turning the marriage garment wrongside out, showing both the beautifully made French seams and the rough unhemmed edges. This tome is Count Hermann Keyserling's "Book of Marriage." It contains the marriage ideas of 24 great modern figures, writers, economists, sociologists.

The intelligence quotient of these 24 would average about one million each. The subject of marriage changes under their hands into something far different from the old simple law of two young people in love, were married, established a home, and lived happily ever after.

Marriage has always existed, they say. No pre-marriage period among any savage race has ever been discovered. There have always been three motives for marriage, say they—mutual sympathy, desire for offspring, and mutual aid in the struggle for existence.

Have you noticed how the young of the species of opposite sex squabble and bicker about nothing these days? It seems there's a reason—sort of a let-out of suppressed emotion. There's a savage tribe in which custom decrees regular community staged fights between the young courting males and females. At what they call a "corroboree," probably some sort of a swell ball, the girls band together and kill a bird which is the totem brother of the men. This awakens the men's lust for vengeance. The young belles are attacked with sticks and pounded to a pulp. The next day the men kill a blue wren which is supposed to be an "elder sister" of the girls. Then there's a new fight as the girls pound the lads to a jelly. Whist wounds are healing, the pairs get acquainted and romance begins to ferment.

Then comes forth this wise crack at America's young in a chapter which discusses marriage in the new world. "The most striking characteristic among the younger generation is the utter absence of any sense of responsibility or regard for anything except what affects their personal feelings. Obligations to society, or custom, even duty to children, when they conflict with the individual's own wishes, scarcely exist."

Guess that's about it!

Every essay in this book stresses the fact that personal happiness of individuals has never been nature's, the state's nor the church's view of marriage. Marriage was for the common weal, the public good, let individuals go hang! Which seems to be the main trouble today with its code of personal happiness first, let the common weal go hang. And who shall say that such an attitude may not further as much public good as the more indirect way of working for the public weal first, no matter what happened to self?

And many a paragraph on the woman who doesn't marry at all. "The evolution of economic independence and its severance from family and home has had the effect of relieving women. The domestic administration which in an earlier epoch filled her existence has become for the most part superfluous. Woman has won the possibility of a life of her own; she can now lead an independent, manless existence without perceiving it to be devoid of meaning."

The dear girls of England and France are wearing earrings so heavy that they must be removed before and after meals to rest the ears. Ears are being pierced for the rings because the screw-on method pulls the lobe of the ear out of shape. A swell chance for the male of the tribe to make another swell argument about female folly.

Mrs. Jean Nash, who has worn for several years the title of "the best-dressed woman in the world," loses her title. Paris says that Queen Marie is now "the best-dressed woman in the world." Mrs. Nash gladly surrenders her title. She has recently acquired a new and fifth husband, making her full name Mrs. Jean Kerwin Sifton Nash Sabit-Bey Dubonnet. She says, "I abandon the title of the best-dressed woman to any woman who cares to make her own affairs of the world. But now I have other objects in life. From now on you can call me 'the happiest woman in the world.'"

Now what we, the sisterhood, want to know is not whether her distinction of being the "best-dressed woman" might not have had something to do with her annexing of five husbands, the last of whom makes her say that she only wants to be left alone to be happy! After all, pretty clothes are one w.k. man-catching sticky flypaper.

DON'T TRUST INSTINCTIVE PREJUDICES—By Olive Roberts Barton

We never admit that we are prejudiced. We say we dislike this, that or the other person, and set ourselves upon judgment, presumably for some shortcoming or character lack of his own.

All the while, most likely, the trouble is with us. For no reason at all we make it plain that we have no use for him, and take every opportunity to shout to our friends that there must be something terribly wrong with John Smith to so thoroughly incur our dislike and distrust.

Very likely John Smith is a likeable and guileless sort of a chap who can't for the life of him understand what he has done to make us treat him so casually. If we were to take the trouble to know him a little better, very likely we would be ashamed of the instinct that has led us astray. Think how often it has happened in your life, this snap judgment of people that proved to be wrong upon closer acquaintance. Rarely do we dislike people after we know them.

well. We may not approve of them thoroughly—we may question the things that they do and the things that they say. But even so we lose that childish trait of transferring our dislike of an opinion to the person who holds it, after we know him well enough to call him friend.

We do not realize what an immature thing it is at best, this business of announcing that we like this or that person or that we dislike him. Big people with big interests who are doing big things in the world have learned early to separate their dislike of a course of action from the person who pursues it, of their disapproval of an opinion from the person who holds that opinion.

They know how silly and futile it is to harbor a grudge against the man who does not agree with them, and make a personal issue of it.

Political enemies meet amicably in a social way; rival heads of big business do not personally discredit each other. Religion and science, those realms so full of diverse opinions and differently construed knowledge—what progress would they make if the genius at their heads turned its power and intellect into peevish, personal animosity toward each other and all who refuse to follow.

Let us free ourselves from prejudice.

Returns After Service of Forty Years

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 18.—(AP)—After forty years of service to the Illinois Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church the Woman's Home Missionary society of the Methodist church returned today to the First church here where it was organized, for the forty-first annual convention. National officers attending the meeting included Mrs. Dan Brummitt, Chicago, national board of managers and chairman of the jubilee committee; Mrs. J. W. Dowds, Bucyrus, Ohio, bureau secretary of junior work, and Mrs. H. L. Haywood, Pana, bureau secretary of white work in Mississippi. Two hundred delegates are expected to attend.

Mrs. E. K. Towle, Urbana, gave the president's address this morning, followed by a welcome by Mrs. C. M. Pierce, Bloomington, and response by Mrs. A. M. Drake.

During the Thursday afternoon program talks were to be made by Mrs. Hugo Pfizenmeyer, of Le Roy; Mrs. W. S. Johnson of Bloomington; Miss Eunice Van Winkle and Mrs. Frank Orr, Taylorville; Miss Ara Vaughn and Mrs. Lydia Mosier, Urbana and Miss Edna Perdue, Paxton.

Friday morning's meeting will include reports by Miss Jeanette Scott, on Evangelism, Mrs. George Johnson, Supply; Mrs. J. J. Kraiger, Perpetual Membership; Mrs. R. L. Dixon, Bequests and Devotions; Mrs. A. B. Beck, Life Service and Mrs. W. G. Turney of Cowden, Thank Offering. Mrs. A. B. Beck will talk.

Miss Myra Baines of Hillsboro, will talk on "Our Young People," at the Friday afternoon session.

BEAUTIFUL, BUT NOT DUMB, JUST HEAVY—

The fall of the beautiful during the last twenty-four hours has been heavy and as it is not cold it packs easily, making the cleaning of walks a back-breaking job. This snow means business, it cannot be swept off, it has to be shoveled. Hence the "slow motion" noticed among the men and boys of the town, for after an hour of shoveling and then a rest, rapid motion for the day is ruined.

START IN STRONGLY, ANYWAY—

Malden, Mass., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Girl scouts of the First Universalist church have decided to call themselves ves "the bruisers." A rolling pin will be their insignia. They have chosen black and blue for colors.

Were Married Today By Justice Shaulis

This morning at 9 o'clock in the offices of Attorney J. O. Shaulis, a marriage was solemnized, Justice Shaulis officiating at the ceremony. John E. Strobel of Freeport and Miss Ethel Duffy of Freeport, formerly of Dixon, were the principals in the ceremony. They were unaccompanied and returned to Freeport to make their home. The friends of the bride in this city extend best wishes for their happiness.

FAMOUS RUG HERE

New York—The "Emperor's Rug" woven in Persia in 1550, and known as one of the five most valuable rugs in the world, was brought to New York recently by Victor Behar, Glasgow art dealer, and placed on display at the Metropolitan Museum. English experts, according to published reports value the piece at $1,000,000.

WINTER'S SORT OF JOLLY.

These days of winter coming one, with prospects of turkey and Santa Claus and rabbit hunting and football games and long evenings by the fire with the radio or a good book are not so bad to contemplate. By February we'll be hoping for the last of them but right now we should welcome the nippy breezes and the falling snow. We live in a pretty fine part of the world right here in Dixon. Tropical climate looks good to us at times, but that is because we are so far away from it. The rigors of winter may be sort of hard to take sometimes but they are good for mankind.

Take a trip to the north woods sometime. Go up into a country similar to the territory in northern Minnesota where Dr. Sickness of Dixon has his hunting lodge. Size up the kind of folks that you find there in their isolated little cabins in the forests. Those Northwoods settlers have hardship, it is true. They are far from the advantages of modern cities. You would think it was lonely. They work hard for everything they get. Their every day is occupied with the very serious problem of food and clothing and the necessities of life. But after all, we believe they have something which amply repays them for the price they pay, whether they know it or not. They have health and a keen interest in the everyday things of their lives. They are self-sufficient and independent and they carve out their own livelihoods without asking the aid of any other. Their food is in the streams and in the little plots of ground they clear and cultivate. Their work is in the woods where nature has provided a natural wealth and throughout the winter the ring of their axes through the cold air means money to buy the things they need from the outside.

The rise or fall of the Franc, what happened to Aimee at Carmel-by-the-Sea or which political crowd gets a stranglehold on Cook county may make interesting reading to them when the infrequent mail comes in with the papers, but it really does not make a darn bit of difference to you as you sit there in your warmly chinked log cabin with your feet up to the fire and you read those papers while mother fries a big platter of partridge for you and the kids, if you have your homestead all paid for and the calves are doing fine and the woodshed is full of firewood and the roof and cellar full of vegetables and you've a buck deer hanging up in the icehouse and know where you can get another when that one is gone.

We suppose everybody thinks the other fellow is better off. It sounds fine to hear them tell about living in a land of everlasting summer where all you do is to set in the shade of a palm tree and sip iced drinks out of tall glasses that smiling brown natives run up with when you clap your hands. The fellow in the north woods probably envies the city dweller. We, being city dwellers, may be just as wrong as we think he is, but just the same we know he has some things in his life that every man, woman and child ought to have but never gets in the city or where living is soft.

But to get back to where we rambled from the beginning. We are entering that period of the year which, with all its hardships, is good for us. It increases our resistance and takes a little of the "softness" out of even the city dweller's life. We can welcome winter if we think the value it holds.

IS YOUR BANKER "HARD BOILED?"

John Smith says his banker is "hard boiled." Maybe he is. John has had hard luck. He has to renew his notes instead of paying them. Once or twice he has been unable to meet his interest payments.

The other day John wanted to borrow some money. He needed it. It looked as if he could use it profitably. But the banker said "No." So John thinks his banker is "hard boiled."

John's predicament is unfortunate. His banker would like to see him out of his difficulties, not only because he likes John but because he would like to see John get in shape to pay his old notes.

But the banker is not loaning his own money. He is the custodian of the surplus funds of the community. He must be in position to pay his depositors whenever they ask for their money. That is why your banker has to be "hard boiled."

The banker's first duty is to guard his depositors' money—to keep his bank sound.

The plain facts are that John's credit is no longer good. That is unfortunate, but it is not the banker's fault.

Good credit at the bank is a splendid asset. There are many things you can do to keep your credit good. Keep a reasonable cash balance in the bank. Pay notes promptly when due, or make arrangements for renewal beforehand. Pay your interest promptly. Furnish your banker with regular financial statements showing just where you stand.

The time to talk to your banker about credit is before you need it.

THE TINYMITES

BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.)

By this time it was close to night, and up spoke Scouty Tynymite, "I think that he will hide our cart behind the shed," said he. "And then we'll find a place to sleep. I'm sure the food will safely keep until the morn when we will be as hungry as can be."

And, all the time one Tynymite was looking on in keen delight. "Twas Clowzy, who had planned to play a joke upon the band. They're stopped their search for me," he thought, "and so a lesson they'll be taught. Their food will soon be missing, which they will not understand."

The tribe soon left their little cart, and for the haystack made a dart. "We'll sleep up in the hay," "Ha, ha," laughed Clowzy in the tree. "They're leaving all their food to me. They surely all will be surprised when comes another day."

He waited for an hour or so, then thought that it was safe to go and have a feast all by himself, on food they'd left behind. He shinned down the old tree trunk, and slipped and toppled down kerplunk, but, shucks, it didn't hurt him, so he really didn't mind.

And then he raced back to the shed, "Oh, me, oh my, oh me," he said, on seeing what was in the cart. "Here's where I have my fling." Perhaps his act was rather rude, but still he climbed up in the food, and sat right down to eat his fill, and eat it like a king.

"Tomorrow we will see some fun," said Clowzy when the meal was done. "Just think what all the Tynymites will say when they appear. I guess the safest place for me, is back up in that maple tree. Then I can see their big surprise before they know I'm here."

SAINT and SINNER

BY ANNE AUSTIN

Bob Hathaway and Faith Lane looked at each other blankly for a moment then Bob laughed shortly, flicking the typed message that the fleeing stenographer had left for him, with a contemptuous finger.

"Scared stiff—lit out," he said succinctly. "She must have guessed that you had traced the letters to this office. But his is rather conclusive proof that I had nothing to do with her nasty little blackmail scheme, isn't it?"

"Oh, Bob, don't!" Faith pleaded, reaching out a shy hand to touch his arm. "I never really doubted you, but I had to find out all I could—for Cherry's sake. In my heart, I knew."

"Your big heart, your darling, generous big heart!" he said happily, gathering her cold fingers into a grip that hurt her. "This isn't the time nor the place, dear, to tell you. I had planned it so differently—moonlight or starlight, the two of us alone, entirely away from all the other Lanes and Cherry's problems—but you know, Faith, darling Faith, that I love you, want you to marry me. You've known, haven't you?" He drew her toward him, his blue eyes brilliant with love, but a little shy, too—the eyes of a man who has not had enough practice in tender declarations to do it easily.

"Yes," Faith whispered with unsteady lips. Then, with a sudden smile of heartbreaking tenderness that flooded her brown eyes with light and lifted the deep-cut corners of her mouth in irresistible invitation.

Chicago Clerk Approves Tanlac

Nervousness and Sour Stomach Following Diphtheria Ravaged Health.

"After a siege of diphtheria I was in such bad shape, so weak and run-down, that I thought I would never regain health," says Miss Viola Powell, 124 E. 26th St., Chicago. "Food that I ate soured on my stomach. I could not exert myself without suffering from headaches and dizziness. I was so nervous that nights were just hours of thinking, restless turning and tossing. I never felt rested."

"Tanalac cleansed my system, gave me an appetite for food, relieved my stomach trouble and soothed my nerves. It has put me in the best of health and I enjoy life, both work and recreation."

Tanalac builds up scrawny, weak bodies, drives out causes of suffering and gives the body good health. Made from roots, barks and herbs. Take wonderful Tanlac. At your druggist's. Over 40 million bottles sold.

she whispered unsteadily, drawing a quick sharp breath as if her heart hurt her, filled as it was with too much joy. "I always love too much, burden those I love with tenderness and solicitude. Don't let me burden you, Bob. They say men like to pursue, never quite sure, even after marriage, like to think there is still a hidden chamber, containing the very core of love."

Bob Hathaway laughed exultantly, cutting short her fumbling explanation with another long kiss. "You're a natural-born giver, dear heart. You couldn't hold back to save your life." "Well spring the news on the Lane family and on Uncle Ralph this very night," he told her gaily, after a bit as she was smothering her hair. She looked up at him with startled eyes. "And break your promise to your uncle?" she demanded. "No, Bob. We're going to keep it secret until after Cherry's wedding, and you're not coming to the house. No, wait, please, darling. It isn't fair to allow you to be mixed up in all that's happening or threatening to happen to Cherry. We'll see each other frequently."

"Why, Faith, I couldn't stand it!" he protested plaintively, like a hurt boy. "Just when I've learned what heaven is—"

"Please, Bob, it will be hard for me, too, but wait—I'm thinking of Cherry, too." Sudden color flamed in the clear ivory of her cheeks. "She loves you, Bob, she really does, in her way. It would hurt her terribly to see our—our happiness while she is preparing to give herself into a loveless marriage. Do this last thing for me—for Cherry—and after she is married, I'll wear placards, like the old sandwich men, advertising to the world that I'm going to marry Mr. Robert Hathaway, rising young architect."

"I'll think it over," he told her so solemnly that she was touched almost to surrender.

"Hello! Why, Faith, you here! Hello, Mister Hathaway!" Cherry stood in the doorway, her plump little face hard and angry, her yellow eyes blazing. "I suppose Faith has told you that we're on to your little game. I thought I'd beat her to it. I found she'd taken those awful blackmail letters. Now—come clean, Mr. Bob Hathaway!"

JUDGES OF WELL KNOWN ABILITY FOR BOYS' FAIR

Toastmasters' Exhibits for Their Boys to be Big Event

To insure the success of the Toastmaster Fair which opens to the public tomorrow, the committee in charge of awards has spared no pains in securing men of state and national reputation to act as judges. After considerable difficulty, Toastmaster Weiss, chairman of committee on Poetry and Corn, has secured the services of D. E. Warren of Chicago, who is in charge of a great egg laying contest in Englewood and who has a national reputation as a judge of poultry. Mr. Hale's services are in great demand and it was only the civic nature of the Toastmaster Fair that led him to consent to come to Dixon. Mr. Hale will be in Dixon this evening and have a prominent place on the program of the weekly meeting of the Toastmaster Club; on Friday he will judge the poultry. Mr. Hale is to be congratulated on getting a man of such caliber, for this insures expert attention and complete satisfaction.

Warren to Judge Corn

As a judge of corn D. E. Warren, who is the Farm Advisor of Ogle County, has been secured. Mr. Warren has been engaged in a project in Ogle county for the last three years which has been of great value to the farmers; corn extension work. He is an expert on the subject of corn and will judge the exhibits that will represent the judgment of the boys in the community.

The committee on arrangements is pleased to announce that a group of prominent local men, headed by Mayor F. D. Palmer, will judge the merits of the many other exhibits. These men are busy men, and men of affairs and their interest in such a civic enterprise as the Boys' Fair is truly appreciated by the Toastmaster Club.

Other Features Planned

An added attraction has been arranged for. Toastmaster Vogel realizing that no fair is complete without some appeal to the inner man, has arranged for a booth from which will be dispensed fresh cider and doughnuts. As a bargain attraction this booth will offer delicious chocolate caramels which usually retail at fifty cents a pound for the bargain price of thirty cents.

The chairmen of the various committees have been working faithfully and report that by Friday everything will be in readiness to give the public a splendid time, and an insight into the activities of the boys of this community. Music, unique exhibits, athletic contests, fresh cider and a jolly crowd. If there be those who find pleasure a burden, the advice of the club is to stay away, and to those who like education made pleasant by music and jollity, we extend a cordial welcome. Plan to come. Plan to enjoy yourself. Plan to take away some worth while ideas.

HALDANE

Haldane—Nelson G. Mellray of Haldane and Katherine Duebendorfer of Monroe, Wis., were united in marriage at Freeport last week Wednesday and will reside at Monroe, Wis. "Dick" has a host of friends in this vicinity who wish them a long and happy life, he having been a resident of Haldane for many years where he conducted a blacksmith shop and it is very much regretted by his patrons that he decided to leave Haldane.

NO MORE PILES

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonard's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief to Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. Rowland's Pharmacy and drugstore anywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.—Adv.

STERLING WRITER
"FATHER OF FOOT BALL" AT U. OF I.

Scott Williams, Newspaper
Man, Formed First Team

Urbana, Nov. 18.—Ohio State's football team has plenty of offensive power. To date the Buckeyes, who invaded the Illinois stadium Saturday, have scored 177 points in six games and up to the Michigan game had never been held to less than three touchdowns. Against Michigan they made two touchdowns and a field goal. The Bucks in all have made 25 touchdowns this season.

Gerald Murchison of St. Louis, brother of the famous sprinter, got a chance to carry the ball for Illinois against Wabash Saturday and showed that he has some speed. Murchison weighs only 135 pounds and is by far the lightest player on Zuppke's squad.

The Illinois band will play a concert for half an hour before the Ohio State game in the Illinois stadium Saturday. This innovation has proved popular all season.

Illinois' $10,000 rubber cover for the stadium football field has proved successful not only in keeping the gridiron dry before games but in staving off the rain during games. No matter how the weather has threatened at any game this fall, no rain has fallen while a game was being played. The Illinois figure the raincoat killed off the great jinx.

Ohio State's great backfield, which will force the Illinois defense to the limit Saturday, is composed of Clark, quarterback, Grim and Kruskamp, halfbacks and Capt. Marty Karow, fullback. Grim is the running back and is relieved by two other fast boys, Marek and Eby. Kruskamp is the blocker and his interference has been a great factor in the scoring of his companions.

Ohio State's loss to Michigan by missing a try for goal after touchdown is not cutting into the sale of tickets for the Buckeye-Illini battle in the Illinois stadium as much as expected. The fans realize that the game is likely to be just another such thriller as was the engagement at Columbus and the Illini will not be surprised to see a crowd of 40,000.

When Scott Williams, now of Sterling, Ill., organized the University of Illinois football team, he obtained much assistance by corresponding with Walter Camp. Saturday the Illini will repay some of this debt by observing Walter Camp day. A brief tribute to the "Father of American Football" will be delivered through the loudspeaker. Illinois will not ask for contributions for the Camp memorial at Yale but will pay its part out of the gate receipts.

Eddie Jacquin, sports editor of the Champion News-Gazette, announced the Wabash-Illinois football game through the loudspeaker at the Illinois stadium and did a good job, too.

In 1921 Bob Zuppke journeyed to Chicago to see Ohio State play and later the Illini went to Columbus to win their first conference and bump the Buckeyes out of the championship race. Last Saturday Zup observed the Buckeye-Wolverine battle at Columbus and is using the first-hand information he obtained to prepare the Illini for Saturday's encounter with Ohio. The Illini hope there is a moral to this.

Ohio State's football squad will sojourn in Danville Friday, traveling to the Illinois stadium to practice in the afternoon. Undaunted by the loss to Michigan by that unlucky miss of a try for point after touchdown, the Buckeye rooters are coming en masse, many by special trains and others by motor cars. The Buckeyes know they have a great team and a victory over the Illini will go a long way to atone for their sick feeling when they think of that tough luck.

Frosty Peters, Billings, Montana, and Bud Stewart, Battle Ground, Ind.

diana, are the only two players from outside the state of Illinois who will start against Ohio State Saturday. Rockford claims two regulars, Wilson and Reitsch and the others are distributed as follows: Capt. Kassel, Melrose Park, Shively, Paris; Schultz, Geneseo; Marriner, Chicago; Grable, Eldorado; Daugherty, Streator; and Lanum, Champaign, although the quarterback formerly lived in Decatur.

GREENLEAF IS AGAIN CHAMP
AT BILLIARDS

Defeated Chicago
Player Decisively in Final Games

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 18.—(AP)—The world's pocket billiard championship was in possession of Ralph Greenleaf, New York, today for the seventh time.

He regained the title last night after a lapse of only one year, by defeating Erwin Rudolph, Chicago, at a tournament in which ten of the country's leading cueists were contestants.

Under the rules Greenleaf is required to defend his championship every sixty days, the players being eligible to challenge in order in which they finished. The runner up lost no time in taking advantage of this provision and it was announced that he and Greenleaf would meet in Washington, D. C., Jan. 18.

Greenleaf's victory over Rudolph was impressive. Taking the lead with a run of 49 in the sixth inning, the New Yorker thereafter was never seriously threatened. He won the championship in the seventeenth inning. With the title went a cash prize of $1200, a percentage of the gate receipts, a diamond studded gold medal and a contract for one year at $250 a month.

Second place gave Rudolph $1000.

Amateur Athletic U.
Stronger Than Ever

Washington, Nov. 18.—(AP)—An open break between rival national sports governing groups existed today, a culmination of a long period of strife, as an aftermath to the launching of the 1928 American Olympic organization.

The latest clash has left the Amateur Athletic Union more dominant than ever and in complete control of the plans for this country's participation in the Olympic games at Amsterdam, Holland, two years hence.

The A. A. U. put into office their entire ticket headed by W. C. Prout of Boston.

Opposing forces led by Brig. General Palmer E. Pierce, New York, president of the National Collegiate A. A., withdrew altogether from participation in the session and resigned from all committee memberships tendered them.

Want Nebraska and Notre Dame to Join

Minneapolis, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Addition of Notre Dame and Nebraska to the Western Conference, enlarging it to a "Big Twelve" making it the "most powerful football circuit in the world" is favored by Minnesota, according to the Minnesota Daily, official publication of the university.

Commenting editorially upon the proposed shifts being considered in Big Ten circles, the Daily favors the addition of Nebraska, rather than the Michigan Aggies to round out a twelve team circuit.

SECRET DRILLS AT URBANA FOR ZUPPKE'S BUNCH

Lead to Belief Coach Has Something Up Sleeve
for Ohio

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Traditional rivalry between the Illini and Buckeyes will be stirred up again Saturday when the near-contenders for the Big Ten title, who were toppled by Michigan last Saturday by a one point margin, clash with Coach Zuppke's Indians in the Illinois Memorial Stadium.

Zuppke is holding secret sessions this week, barring everyone from the stadium practice gridiron as he prepares to meet Ohio. Coach Zuppke watched the Buckeyes lose to the Wolverine last Saturday by a one point margin and is instilling his team with the greatest respect for the Ohio invaders. While Zup was at Columbus keeping tab on the Buckeyes, his Illini second team downed Wabash 27 to 13 in a game that displayed the potentialities of French, Gallivan and Stuessey, all second string backs who have been benched most of the season while the "four mules" galloped through Chicago, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Butler and Coe. The three young backs may get a chance to relieve some of the regular "four miles" next Saturday sometime during the fray.

Something Up Sleeve.
Zuppke's regular eleven, after a week's rest, is bucking a stiff scrimmage bill this week with both offense and defense work enough to keep the Illini busy. It has been hinted about the Illinois camp that the Illini mentor has something up his sleeve that he will spring next Saturday, accounting for the strict secrecy of his practice sessions this week. However, many who know Zuppke well claim it is only "some more of his psychological hokum cooked up to worry Ohio a bit."

Eight members of the Illini squad will appear in the Orange and Blue uniform for the last time Saturday. Capt. "Chuck" Kassel, "Pug" Daugherty, Bernie Shively, Wienie Wilson, Ray Gallivan, Marion Leonard, Geo. Knapp and Joe Green are the Indians who will be lost to Zuppke after the Ohio game.

From Same Schools.

Zuppke and Wilce, graduates of the same high school and the University of Wisconsin, started their football coaching careers in 1913 and opened football relations with one another in 1914. Twelve times they have tried to outwit one another on the gridiron; Illinois won seven of the games, Ohio four and one was tied. During the seven years from 1914 to 1920, either Illinois or Ohio was conference champion, except in 1915 when Illinois and Minnesota tied for the title.

Barring injuries to players in practice this week, Zuppke will send a team against Ohio Saturday that will be the strongest seen on the Illinois gridiron this year. The players are in excellent condition now, although many were on the sidelines earlier in the season. Kassel and Wilson are the probable starters at the ends; Marriner and Grable as tackles; Shively and Schultz as guards and Reitsch at center. The "four mules" composed Lanum, Daugherty, Stewart and Peters, should see action in the backfield. Zup can fall back on French, Stuessey or Gallivan to relieve any of the "four mules." Perkins and Nowack, tackles, or Brown and Nickol, ends, might break into the lineup if Zup decides to relieve his regular linemen.

SPORT BRIEFS

The padded mitt game, already boasting Monte Munn of Nebraska, Sully Mont Gomery of Centre and other college athletics among the heavyweights, seems likely to find the name of Earl Britton, famous running mate of Red Grange at Illinois, added to the roll. "T. N. T." Lassar, giant tackle of the undefeated New York University Violets, also intends to enter the ring upon graduation.

Adolpho Laque, Cuban pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds and most famous of the island players in big league baseball, denies a rumor that he is about to retire from the diamond to attend to his business interests.

A welterweight terror has arrived in New York from Everton, Wash., in "Jimmy Jack" Johnson, a youth brought from the open spaces by Charley Cook, manager of Abe Attel, Goldstein and Eddie Huffman.

Radio Station WOC Has Not Been Sold Says B. J.

Davenport, Iowa, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Dr. E. J. Palmer, owner of radio station WOC, Davenport, today put an end to rumors which have been in circulation recently that the station was to be sold, by vigorously denying that such a plan was contemplated. Dr. Palmer's statement was prompted by the report published in a newspaper in central Illinois that the station was about to change hands.

"We have never had any intention of selling, renting or leasing WOC and will continue to operate the station as long as the government permits us to do so," Dr. Palmer declared.

LITTLE BROWN JUG

Will be Trophies Played for on Big Ten
Grids Saturday

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Two buckets and a little brown jug loomed through snow and rain today to claim the spotlight in the closing action of the 1926 Western Conference football drama.

The worst weather of the year failed to shut the brown dem John out of the picture at Minnesota, where it will be on the side lines during Saturday's game with Michigan.

Michigan has carried off the traditional trophy for several seasons and early this fall won the jug with a 20-0 bid, but Gopher fans warned the Wolverines today to bring the jug along and save postage.

Hoods and mittens were issued the squad to permit unabated practice for the encounter in which Michigan, despite the earlier victory, now is ranked only a slight favorite. Saturday's battle for the jug will be the last for Captain Benny Friedman and several Wolverine stars, and for a few number of graduating Gophers.

Want "Old Oaken Bucket"

At Purdue, an "old oaken bucket" beckoned Indiana, hoping to retain the drive that downed Mississippi last week to humble Purdue and gain possession of the trophy.

Prospect of cold and rain-swept fields for the closing engagements of the year have added to the task of the coaches and increased the likelihood of upsets which can entirely alter the Big Ten standing.

Iowa labored today in a game designed to overthrow powerful Northwestern in the last appearance of Captain "Moon" Baker and what would be, in the defeat of his team, an upset as important as a victory by Minnesota over Michigan. Michigan and Northwestern, the two teams undefeated in conference games, are fighting for a tie at worst and a possible home claim on the title.

At Illinois Zuppke posted his forces against the invasion of Ohio State, when his own Daugherty, full back, and Captain Karow and a handful of his Ohio mates will wind up their college gridiron careers.

Only a tradition is at stake in the Chicago-Wisconsin game, both elevens being well down in the title fight, but both were spurred today by the chance of a victory over an old rival which would make a highly successful season's end.

WILD DREAM OF REPORTER TOLD TO WEATHER MAN

Planned to Draw Warm
Air from South by Means of Fans

Chicago, Nov. 18.—(AP)—This is the story of a news story which did not pan out.

Inspired by the report that the Maine legislature had appropriated vast funds for harnessing the tides of the Bay of Fundy and also the long-felt idea that possibly there might be some means of tempering the chill, wintry winds off Lake Michigan, a reporter recently evolved, after much mental torture, what he regarded as a very fine humanitarian idea.

It dealt with the setting up at short intervals all the way from the Gulf of Mexico to Chicago of power exhaust fans, with the idea of having the cumulative effect of the enforced draft waft upon Chicago gentle south breezes to change its winter climate to balmy semi-tropical while the remainder of the north country outside the line of fans remained ice-and-snow-bound.

He figured out the distance necessary between fans, looked up the name of a company manufacturing the devices, estimated the miles of wire necessary, figured out what a right of way might cost, considered cities en route which might help Chicago pay for the whole thing, and laid the matter before an expert.

Then the story died.

"Impossible, absolutely impractical and impossible," exclaimed Prof. Henry J. Cox, veteran head of the Chicago office of the United States Weather Bureau.

"It would not work, and if it would work you'd only chill the south. Don't you see that if you pull up hot air to us there must be something to replace it, and the cold air would rush down there. Then all you would be doing would be circulating cold air and freeze everybody to death. No. Absolutely no good."

"Yes, sir, thank you, sir," said the reporter. But here is a good story anyway.

Retired Merchant Shot and Killed by Patron

Moberly, Mo., Nov. 17.—(AP)—George Sours, 51, a retired merchant, was shot and killed here early today by Frank Forney, Sours' former partner. A business squabble was blamed for the shooting.

Armed with a revolver, Sours is alleged to have forced entrance to Forney's home and to have fired at Forney, but missed, then to have fired three times at Forney before Forney got his revolver from a drawer and sent four bullets into Sours. Forney who was wounded in the hand, said he thought the intruder was a burglar.

ILLINOIS CHAMP CORN HUSKER IS BEATEN IN MEET

Iowa Man New Champion of Corn Pickers of United States

Freemont, Neb., Nov. 18.—(AP)—The corn husking championship of the world has been returned to the tall corn state by Fred Stanley of Fort Dodge, Iowa, who also held the title in 1924.

By husking 25.28 net bushels of corn in 89 minutes on the Joe Roberts farm near here yesterday, Stanek dethroned Elmer Williams the "praying husker" of Illinois who finished next to last in the field of twelve contestants from seven corn belt states. Williams however, still holds the world's record of 35.8 bushels which he established last year when he won the crown.

Joe Sudik, Nebraska champion, finished second with 25.26 bushels and Earl Seiler, left handed runner up to Williams in this year's Illinois contest, was third with 25.26 bushels.

Williams' defeat was a hard blow to the twenty boosters from his home community, Stark County, who were in the crowd of 5,000 which witnessed the contest, but declared the defeat did not shake his faith in prayer.

Praises "Better Man"
"Stanek is just a better man than I am", Williams declared. "A fellow doesn't always get everything he prays for, and it is a good thing he doesn't. It was harder for me because I was not used to husking corn and husks on Nebraska corn are tougher than on Illinois corn."

Williams was the most spectacular husker in the contest. Despite the frigid temperature, cold wind and snow, he husked bare headed, bare handed and with his sleeves rolled up. Stanek proved his supremacy by gathering more corn and cleaner corn. His gross corn was 2,158 pounds and his deductions were 363.4 pounds for gleanings and none for husks. This was said to be an unusual feat.

The winner of the contest received $100 and the second and third $50 and $25 each.

Fore Book is Novelty for Christmas Shoppers

Chicago, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Among the Christmas novelties that have begun to appear in Chicago are fore books. One of the leading bookstores here has a choice collection of curiosities for the possession of which any true bibliophile would be tempted almost to the point of theft.

The fore book is a volume the front of which as a rule seems to be conventional gilt edge. When, however, through accident or design the ends of the leaves forming the front or so-called fore are pressed back on an oblique angle, the fore book is shown to have had concealed in the golden front surface a hand-painted richly colored ideal landscape or some attractive historic scene.

To obtain this result, the method employed is a principle the same as sometimes made rough use of in street bill-boards composed of slats which are looked at from different angles present first one sign or picture and then something quite different. So cunningly contrived and artistic in execution, though, are the fore books that their appeal is directed in the main to the ultra elite of the season's Christmas shoppers.

Bismarck's Best Cigar One He Never Smoked

Berlin.—The cigar I never smoked was the one that tasted best," was Prince Bismarck's invariable reply in his later years to the question of what brand he most esteemed. Norris Busch in his book on the life of the Iron Chancellor, recalls this enigmatic reply and the explanation taken from an incident Bismarck himself related after the Battle of Koenigsberg in the Austro-Prussian war of 1866.

"I had only one cigar in my pocket and was cherishing its smoke like a miser," said Bismarck. "But I misadvised, for lying helpless nearby I saw a wounded dragoon begging for refreshment. I looked through all my pockets. Money? Of course that would do him no good. Stop! I still had my cigar. I lighted it, put it between the teeth of the unfortunate

NEWS of the CHURCHES

BETHEL U. E. CHURCH.

Next Sunday evening the service at Bethel United Evangelical church will be in charge of the W. M. S. of the church. This will be their annual Thankoffering service. A service of unusual interest has been planned. Rev. Antonio F. Scorza will be the speaker. Mr. Scorza is the pastor of the Moody Italian Mission of Chicago. This Mission is located just a few doors from what is known as "Death Corner," where, it is said, more men have been murdered than on any other corner in the city. Pastor Scorza is a forceful speaker, and during the Illinois Christian Fundamentals Conference at Cedar Lake, Ind., last summer gave a most helpful account of his conversation. His audience was gripped and inspired by his message. The public is cordially invited to this service which begins at 7:30.

Frosty's Toe May Beat the Buckeyes

Urbana, Ill.—Frosty Peters' trusty toe may decide the Ohio State-Illinois football game in the Illinois memorial stadium Saturday, Nov. 20. Frosty booted one over the goal just when it was needed in the Illinois-Pennsylvania game and it might happen that if the Illinois and Buckeyes battled nip and tuck, a similar feat would determine the banners on which victory will perch.

Frosty started his varsity gridiron career under a disadvantage as rumor groomed him as a "successor to Grange." This was a heavy burden to carry but Frosty aided greatly in Illinois' defeat of Iowa by kicking two field goals. Against Michigan he never really had a chance to score by the air route as his four times were from almost midfield.

Frosty comes from Billings, Mont., which means that his grades had to be ten per cent above the passing grade of his high school, the Illinois requirement on all out of state students. He did try to enter another middle-western university in 1924 but at that time lacked half a credit in science. Then he spent a year in the University of Montana. He has performed most creditably in his studies at Illinois.

It is certain that Ohio State will attract the largest crowd in the history of its pilgrimages to Illinois. However, with 67,000 capacity, the Illinois expect to be able to take care of all comers even at the last minute.

FREEPORT MAN HEAD ILLINOIS LUTHERAN BODY

Conference Held at Nachusa First of Present Week

Nachusa—Dr. W. F. Rex, of Freeport, was re-elected president of the northern Illinois conference of the United Lutheran church at the seventh annual convention which came to a close Wednesday afternoon. The session was held in the St. Paul's church here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The Rev. J. M. Scheller of Harvard, was named secretary and C. E. Derr, of Dixon was made treasurer.

The address Wednesday morning was delivered by the Rev. Frank H. Schroer, of Pearl City. Speaking from the subject, "The Rural Church," he declared that many pastors fail because they know nothing about farming. "How can a man be a success as a country pastor if he doesn't know whether a Duroc-Jersey is a cow or a pig?" he asked.

The convention adjourned early to permit the delegates to visit the Nachusa Lutheran orphanage.

To Hold 57-Year-Old Cotton as an Heirloom

Chipley, Ga.—(AP)—A bale of cotton almost 57 years old, is owned here by heirs of Christopher Columbus Jones, who in September 1870 had the bale ginned and then held it year after year for the price he had resolved to get for it—22½ cents per pound.

Planter Jones sold his other cotton but obdurately held to his bale on which he placed a price of $132.97½ for its original 587 pounds. Eventually the "resolution bale" became a family pet, so to speak, and its sentimental value was such that in recent years when cotton soared to its 45c per pound peak, no offers were entertained.

Ginned in the old fashioned way, the cotton remains in what is left of the original bagging and ties and its quality has not deteriorated. Experts have graded the lint as "No. 2" and reported that the fibre pulls one and one sixteenth inches.

The heirs have agreed that the bale never should be sold.

Has Not Seen His Play in 1200 Performances

Torquay, England.—(AP)—Eden Phillips, author of "The Farmer's Wife" which has reached its 1200th performance in London has never seen the play, and does not intend to, his reasons being "entirely sentimental."

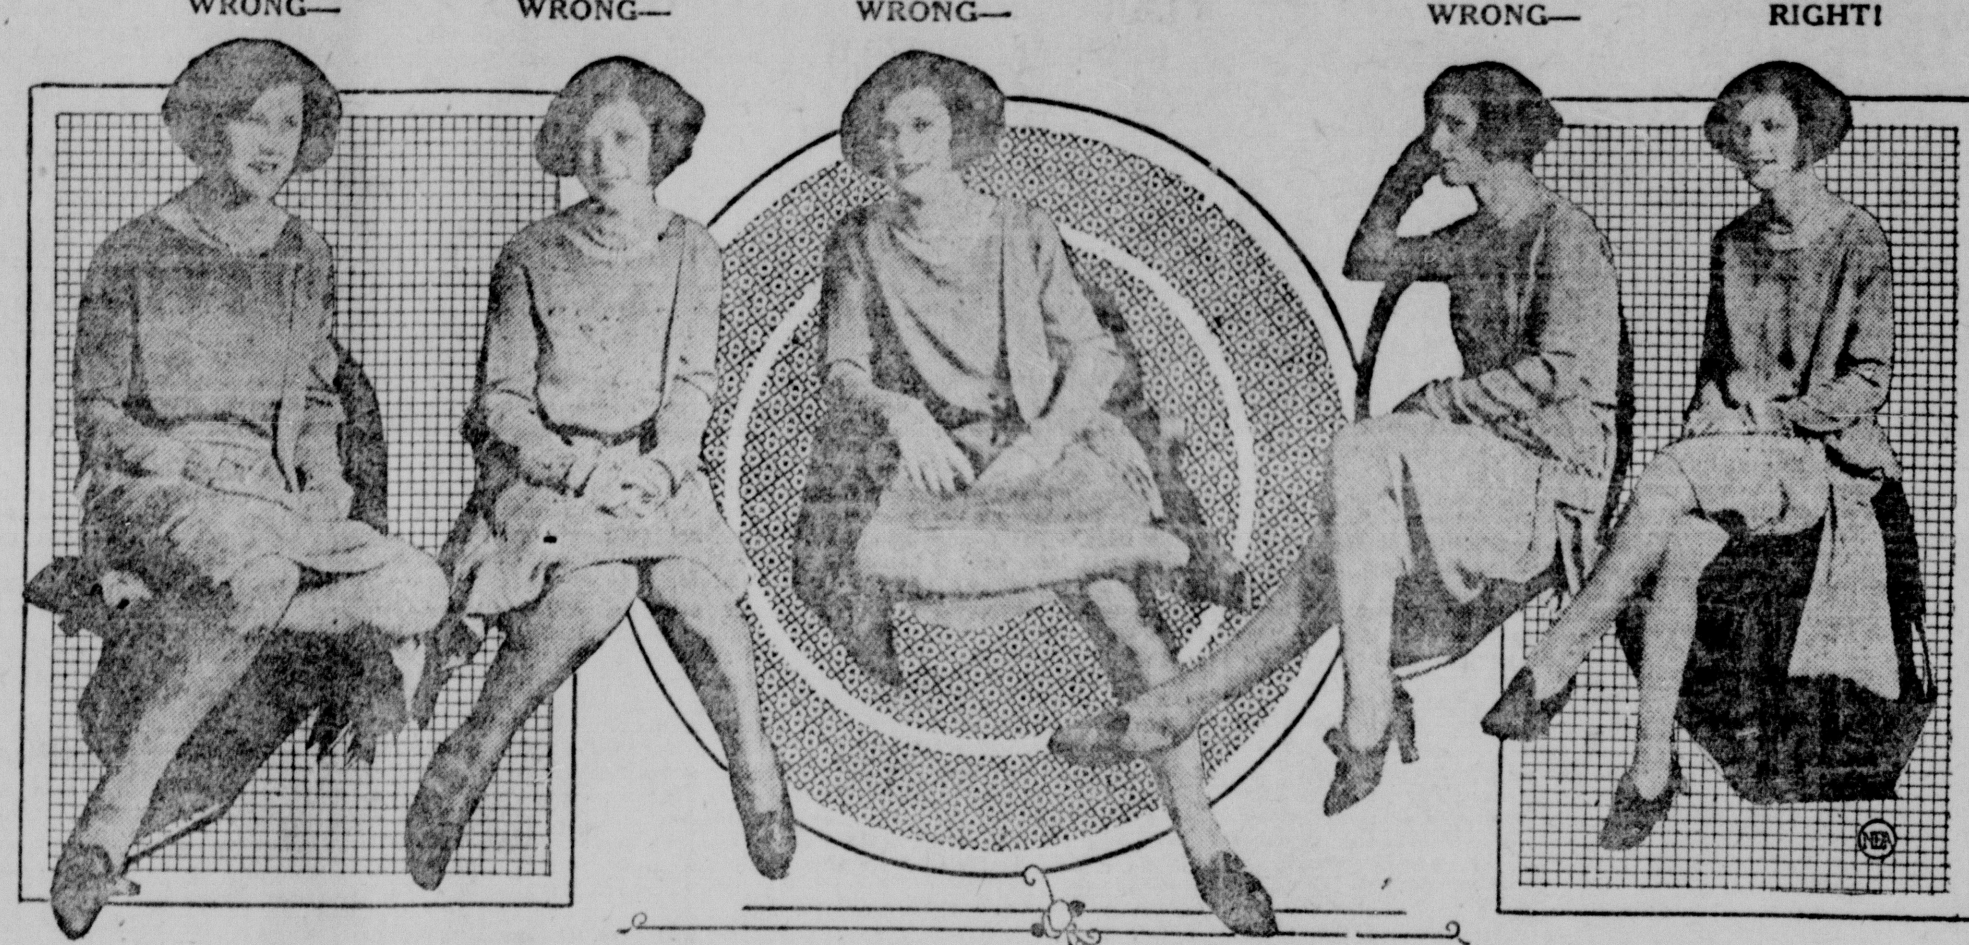

Some of the characters are drawn from real life, Devon folk whom the novelist loved and who are no more, and he shrinks from the idea of seeing them on the stage. Mr. Phillips sends the members of the cast wines and other gifts whenever another "hundred night" is reached.

GIRLS! SIT UP STRAIGHT AND BE BEAUTIFUL—SLOUCH, AND BE A WALL FLOWER

Sit up straight, girls, if you want to be healthful and beautiful. So advise members of the Middle Atlantic Osteopathic Association—and Miss Evelyn Schlecht, of Cleveland, demonstrates. The pose at the left causes nervousness and digestive disturbances, 'tis said. The next pose is the worst of all—it's ugly as well as unhealthy. The one in the middle invites curvature of the spine. The one next to the right draws the spine out of plumb and causes round shoulders. But ah! At the extreme right—we have it! This pose, with shoulders straight, the head up and one knee thrown lightly over the other, leads to health, happiness and a merry old age.

Holds $30 Bill Issued in 1778 is Legal Tender

New Britain, Conn.—(AP)—A bona fide $30 bill is held by Bernard L. Hoppe of this city. Local banking houses pronounce it authentic, and Hoppe has refused many times its face value.

The note, dated September 26 1778, and signed by "A Lawrence, Secretary of the United States Treasury," is numbered 217,305. It is about one-fourth the size of a modern dollar bill. Bankers say it is still legal tender.

Ultra-Violet Rays Make Taller and Fatter Boys

Smethwick, England—Taller and fatter schoolboys are being developed here by the simple expedient of equipping classrooms with a kind of window glass that allows ultra-violet rays to pass into the room.

Dr. J. B. Ferguson, the school medical officer, has reported that during a nine months' test in a classroom so fitted, the boys grew half an inch taller and three pounds heavier than colleagues in an adjoining room lighted by ordinary glass, which, the doctor says, cut out the vital ultra-violet rays almost completely.

Family Group Pictures Now Passe in Britain

London.—(AP)—Family groups are a thing of the past in British photographic galleries. Mother, father and all the children no longer present themselves to be lined up in an angular awkwardness before the camera. Neither do wedding parties pose in their entirety any more.

Snapshots of an informal character have replaced the old groups professional photographers were formerly called upon to make, and the gallery work is now almost entirely photographs of individuals.

Hungarians Protest Any Welcome to Queen Marie

Cleveland, O., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Petitions protesting official recognition of queen Marie of Rumania by Cleveland officials, will be distributed here by Hungarian groups, it was announced today following a protest meeting last night attended by several hundred persons. Leaders declared they had no objection to welcoming the Queen as a "charming lady," but that the group wished to protest against plans for "officially welcoming her as Queen of Rumania."

GREAT PROGRAM FOR OGLE FARM MEET JAN. 19-20

Several Very Prominent Speakers Secured for Annual Institute

Oregon—A most attractive program has been arranged for the annual meeting of the Ogle County Farmers Institute which will be held on January 19 and 20 at Forreston. The program committee have just completed the outline of the program which will include some very able speakers, among them Sam Thompson of Quincy, the president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Wm. E. D. Rummel of Chicago, a noted lecturer, and son of the heads of departments of the University of Illinois including Dr. L. E. Card of the Poultry Division and Prof. H. P. Rusk of the Animal Husbandry Division. Other Illinois men will speak who are foremost in their particular lines of farming and whose experience is of state wide interest including Frank L. Mann of Gilman and Wm. Webb, noted seed corn judge of Joliet.

The program for the Household Department of the Institute has not yet been completed but will include addresses by Dr. Elizabeth Ball of the State Department of Health at Springfield, Dr. Eva Wilson of Manhattan, Mrs. Lena S. Mann of Gilman and Mrs. J. L. Murray of Bloomington. Sam Thompson's address will be on the subject "National Problems in Agriculture" and it will be an address that every farmer in Ogle County ought to hear.

The greatest difficulty that the institute committees are going to have will be that of finding large enough halls for the accommodation of the number who will attend these sessions. The present plan is to use two halls dividing the program in the middle and using speakers twice; once at each hall so that everybody will have an opportunity to hear them.

Music at every session will be provided by local talent including the Forreston double quartette which has made itself quite distinguished by its former performances and also the high school orchestra and other local musicians.

In addition to the program there will be an exhibition of farm, home and school products with prizes offered that will make it attractive to a large number of competitors.

Arrangements will be made also for dinners and accommodations of every kind to make it pleasant for those who come and the Forreston folks are hoping to entertain a large number of guests on this occasion.

Those wishing information in regard to the institute meeting may receive it from Elmer Vietmeier of Forreston, president of the farmers institute or Mrs. Dick Reints, president of the Household Department or from the Ogle County Farm Bureau.

AMUSEMENTS

GRAND OPERA

The spectacular splendor of Chicago's opening week of opera, rivaled by the social significance imparted to the second week by the visit of Queen Marie of Roumania to the great Civic institution last Tuesday evening, will find an echo in the third week through the brilliance of the repertoire, commencing next Monday evening, (Nov. 22) with an air-star performance of "Carmen."

The closing days of the current week are of outstanding importance, for instance, tonight (Thurs. Nov. 18) a feast of novelty, the first performance of "Don Giovanni," "Daughter of the Regiment," heard in Chicago in two generations and the first performance ever given by Chicago's resident company, also affording the first extensive performance of divertissements offered by the ballet this season.

Friday evening brings the first presentation of the year of "La Juive" (The Jewess). The cast will embrace Rosa Raisa, Elide Norena, Charles Marshall, Jose Mojica, Desire DeFrere, Alexander Kipnis, Serge Oukrainsky, Heine Samuels, and the corps de ballet; Weber conducting.

For Saturday matinee, (Nov. 20) "Resurrection" will be repeated with the same great cast with which it was first sung this season.

Saturday evening introduces "Rigoletto" at popular prices.

Monday (Nov. 22) "Carmen" brings forward Mary Garden, Elide Norena, Fernand Anseau, Edouard Catreuil and Giamofo Rimini in the leading roles, surrounded by Anna Hamlin, Lorna Deane Jackson, Jose Mojica, Ernest Torti, Desire DeFrere, Eugenio Correnti, and others. There will be incidental dances by Serge Oukrainsky, assisted by Miles Sherman, Norena, Samuels, and Chapman, and the entire corps de ballet will be seen in the fourth act. Maestro Polacco conducting.

Tuesday brings a repeat performance of "Il Trovatore," with Muzio, Lenska, Misen, Lindi, Mojica, Bonelli Lazzari, and Morelato; Weber conducting.

Wednesday brings a repeat of melodious "Lucia di Lammermoor," with

For Love of Two Sons

Colonel Edmund Sterling (above) of the U. S. secret service has been sent to Amherst, Mass., to serve as companion and guard for John Coolidge (in oval, son of President Coolidge and an Amherst College student. Meantime Mrs. Coolidge has presented the gold cross shown in the lower picture to the memorial chapel of Mercersburg (Pa.) Academy in memory of Calvin Coolidge, Jr., who died three years ago.

Del Monte, Cortis, Rimini, and Cotreuil, St. Leger conducting.

Thursday, Thanksgiving day, will have as soloists those who dine not wisely but too well, tuneful, melodious, and atmospheric "La Boheme" with the same great cast with which the popular Puccini opera was restored to the repertoire on the third night of the season—Mason, Pawloska, Cortis, Oliviero, Montesanto, Lazzeri, Trevisan; Polacco conducting.

There will be no performance Friday evening, as the company goes to Milwaukee to sing "Aida," as the opening of a series of three Friday performances. Saturday afternoon is given over to the premiere of "La Cenerentola," and in the evening "Resurrection" will be repeated at popular prices.

Sunday afternoon (Nov. 23) the Suburbanites special performance will be devoted to "The Jewels of the Madonna," repeated by special request. The cast will include Raisa, Lenska, Lamont, Rimini, Moranzoni conducting. Serge Oukrainsky, Miles, Maria Nemeroff, Viola Sherman, and the corps de ballet will contribute incidental dances.

Because of the universal practice of making arrangements early for New Year's Eve parties, the management has shattered traditions by announcing the bill for that night. Ordinarily a full week is the arbitrary limit for future announcements, but on this occasion it is made known that the long promised treat for Mozart enthusiasts will provide the bill—an elaborate all-star presentation of "Don Giovanni." The special prices usual for New Year's Eve—$1.50 to $10.00—will prevail and mail orders will be accepted now and filled later in the sequence of their receipt. The cast will include Raisa, Mason, Loring, Schipa, Vanni-Marcoux, Lazzari, Kipnis, Trovian; Polacco conducting.

PLANS MADE FOR REUNION OF OLD SIXTH REGIMENT

Boys of Porto Rican Campaign to Meet in Sterling

The old Sixth regiment is to come together again, for the first time since Spanish war days, and plans for the gathering of the survivors have already begun to take form. Sterling is to be the rendezvous for the gallant old Sixth.

The 28 years that have elapsed since the mustering out of the old regiment have obscured the glamor of its golden days but the glories of the time when "loyal hearts were beating high" will never fade nor will the memory of the old regiment as long as one of the survivors lives to tell the tale. Yet so rapidly have the years swept by and so many events of great import have come to pass, that even here in Dixon there are many who know the old Sixth, if they know it at all, as a sort of a long ago outfit that has ceased to be a part of today's affairs and belongs only to the memories of the past. The reunion on Monday, Dec. 6, is to bring to life again the brave old outfit around which in the days of the Spanish war were centered the pride, the hope and the prayers of northwestern Illinois.

Hope to Have Gen. Foster

The local committee of the Sixth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry Reunion association met Monday evening in Sterling to make tentative plans for the reunion on Dec. 6. It was decided to have the registration of veterans at 10:30 o'clock, a welcome address by Mayor Fred W. Honens at 1:30 o'clock, and to secure Gen. D. Jack Foster of Chicago to make the response, if possible. Gen. Foster was colonel in command of the regiment during the Porto Rican campaign, and when he became a general, the late Col. William F. Lawrie of Sterling succeeded him as colonel of the regiment, which was continued as a unit of the Illinois National Guard until mustered into service in the world war. After the Spanish war it was mustered out of the federal service on Nov. 25, 1898.

A business meeting will be held after the exchange of greetings between the community and regiment, and the organization of the regimental reunion association will be perfected. Then the visitors will be given a short motor ride about Sterling-Rock Falls.

There will be a big banquet in the evening, the details of which are to be arranged later, when correspondence determines who of the proposed speakers will be able to be here. It is the hope of everybody that Chaplain J. W. Ferris of Abingdon can be secured to thrill the boys once again as he used to do in the stirring days when the announcement that "Chaplain Jack" was to preach would fill any church in northern Illinois with boys who lined up at the door and marched in two by two.

The 12 companies of the regiment were located at the following cities: Co. A, Rock Island; Co. B, Geneseo; Co. C, Galesburg; Co. D, Abingdon; Co. E, Sterling; Co. F, Moline; Co. G, Dixon; Co. H, Monmouth; Co. I, Morrison; Co. K, LaMoille; Co. L, Freeport; Co. M, Galena.

JUDGE RULES WGN HAS SOLE RIGHT TO WAVE LENGTH

Interference of Station WGES Ordered Stopped by Circuit Court

Chicago, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Extension of congressional powers of regulation of interstate and foreign commerce to the regulation of radio use of the air was forecast in the decision of Circuit Judge Wilson, providing, in effect, protection for the broadcasting station first using a wave length.

Judge Wilson directed Station WGES here to broadcast on wave lengths which "will not materially interfere" with the broadcasting of station WGN of the Chicago Tribune, pending a supreme court decision.

Such a move, the judge's opinion said, would naturally lead to control of broadcasting operations in a case of interference much the same as it has in connection with the laws against interstate transportation of diseased cattle.

In the WGES-WGN matter, he ruled a supreme court decision would have to determine whether or not the 40 meters diversion between the two wave lengths is sufficient to permit clear reception from both.

The suit was filed by WGN, pleading broadcasting from WGES interfered with reception of the former's programs.

Sultan's Palace is Now Gambling Place for All

Constantinople.—(AP)—A new tyrant maker and breaker of fortunes, reigns in Yildiz Kiosk. The favorite palace of Abdul Hamid, arch tyrant of the Ottoman Empire, has been transformed into a gambling casino where those who were once trembling subjects of the sultan are now making obeisance to the King of Chance.

Former palace officials, secretaries, eunuchs, concubines, slaves who passed years in the Kiosk without seeing more of the interior than their own appointed corners, are now trooping even into the rooms where the Imperial Harem was guarded from all eyes except those of the Sultan. The butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker are clinking coins in the stately hall where Hamid and his one-time guest, the ex-Kaiser of Germany, secretly gambled.

All classes of society and a score of nationalities are crowding about the tables of roulette and baccarat in this historic hall while in an adjoining salon Turkish women of the new unveiled day dance the Charleston to the latest of jazz tunes.

Don't Tell the Wife

BY WILLIAM B. COURTNEY

Copyright 1926 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"DON'T TELL THE WIFE," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

The stubborn tempers of Ranny Forbes, star polo player, and his beautiful wife, Joan, result in clashes that furnish society with choice gossip. Joan wants a divorce; but Ranny avows to his chum, Clay, that he loves her. Worse, he has secretly discovered that she is in love with another man, Abner Gratman, a lumber king with whom Ranny has been negotiating a gigantic business deal, soagers fifty thousand on Ranny's team in the Western Cup Match. Victory will mean business good will. Ranny learns that the wager is with Abner Gratman! Ranny's phenomenal playing interests even his wife. Abner, jealous, plots viciously to undo him—

CHAPTER II

The echoes of the timing bell, signaling the second chucker, pinned the rapt attention of every spectator to the field. Every spectator, that is, saving one. Abner Gratman, slinking along with jealous rage gnawing at his heart, reached the paddock without having attracted undue attention. He totally escaped Stivner, who had gone in search of him up the less conspicuous front row.

Abner found Ranny's convalescent bantam cock of a groom detailing an assistant to hold the bridle of Milkmaid, who was saddled and ready under a blanket, while he walked steaming Judy off to rub her a bit and blanket her and roast her for the fourth chucker.

Here was luck. The assistant would be easier to fool. Abner rang himself alongside the lad in an ingratiatingly democratic way.

"Warm playing, eh?"

"I'll tell the cross-eyed world!"

His knife bit into the leather.

enthused the flattered boy, though he really had neither the intention nor the means to carry out his nose to modest promise.

Abner snifled in covert disgust at this yokel bombast, but he took advantage of the absorbed interest it represented. The boy, disarmed by Abner's friendliness and entranced by the furious swirl of the game he adored, was innocently unaware of what the society man beside him was doing. Nonchalantly resting against the side of Milkmaid, one arm flung over her saddle so as to hide with his body his actions from the idle or casual glances of any of the nearby hostlers. Abner worked persistently and carefully with his other arm under Milkmaid's blanket, sawing the blade of his knife across the stirrup strap until but a flimsy film of leather held the stirrup. The first severe strain—and—bloody!

"Lookit Mr. Forbes ride 'em off from the goal, sir! Lookit that swiftness!" exclaimed the boy. "Gosh, he sure kept 'em from scoring that time!"

But Abner, having completed his nefarious design, walked off now, ignoring the boy as he would a worm, and the craftfallen lad wondered in pained fashion at the social inconsistencies of the elite.

Seven and a half minutes of a rushing defiance of bonobreak drawing to a close. Rough riding that sent hair-raising prickles over the scalps of spectators. Team work that thrilled the expert; sensational strokes, passes long and short that thrilled the laymen; hits and rallies everywhere, but not a goal chalked up, largely because the efforts of either team to work the ball into positions that afforded favorable angles for shots were aborted by the yipping Cosmacks of the opposing side, causing a general hurrying of shots and goal tries from too great distances. Even as Abner strolled away from the paddock the bell clanged its brisk recall of the players for their hard earned three minute interlude.

Ranny, boyishly aflame with his eager passion for the game, was too impatient to rest. He merely dismounted from Firebug, vaulted upon Milkmaid and trotted out upon the field again. Clay raised into pace with him, and said: "Just overheard Stivner trying to increase the bet. Gratman hedged. By the way, I noticed that you and Stivner had quite a confab after the first chucker. He seems to have taken a shine to you, old son. And the friendship and admiration of Livingstone Stivner are not to be sneezed at!"

Ranny was gratified. So much so that, after the bell had opened the next chucker, he swept into the fray with a Centaurish fury that almost accounted for a goal—almost, but not quite, for a plucky Argentine player deliberately galloped between the goal and the ball. The white globe, hurtling through midair, struck his pony's body. Which finished that particular try for goal—and that particular pony's usefulness for the rest of the afternoon.

Time was called out until the sorely hurt Little English bred was led, quaking and quivering, off the field and a fresh mount substituted. Then play was resumed, and immediately took on its former furious tempo. The scrimmage unraveled on the trail of a gorgeously long drive from a desperate Argentine mallet. The Argentine captain, breaking clear first in a lucky head start, threw his weight encouragingly over his pony's neck, and away it flew down the velvety field like a beast possessed—as though the very devil were threatening its hindquarters with a red-hot trident.

Each yard saw the distance between the Argentine captain and the pursuing Americans increase; each yard saw the distance between the flying Argentine and the Yankee goal diminish. The ball, bounding ahead, was set on a dead line for the menaced space between the Tornadoes' posts. Only a miracle could keep that little strip of chalked grass inviolate now. The spectators, sensing the "break" in the game, were in a furore.

Livingstone Stivner, in the fell clutch of polo hysteria, could emit no sound above a hoarse and incoherent gurgle in his throat as his popping eyes watched the race that might mean fifty thousand dollars' loss to him.

Those of the onlookers who retained enough control of their faculties to do it were yelling: "Ranny! Ranny! After him, Ranny! Ride him off, Ranny! Where's Ranny?"

Aye, that was the question of the moment. Where was Ranny? Ranny, alas, was many yards away. The ability of the Argentine captain to make such a clean hit and break from the scrimmage was due solely to the fact that Ranny—usually an attentive player, who left all his troubles in the paddock or on the side lines—had not kept his mind on the ball. Indeed, to be precise, not only his mind, but his eyes, too, had strayed from the ball to the sedan. For he had seen Abner climbing into the ball—no, into the sedan—to rescue his bantam seat beside Joan.

Ranny felt his cheeks burning under their solid fortunes (and a grizzled tan picked into his tough epidermis on many a polo field or battlefield, by many a tropic sun. By now the whole crowd must be aware of his admittance to the ancient and dishonorable status of a cuckold—a deceived husband. Still, perhaps that was stretching it to far. Even though the crowd would think it, Ranny felt that things had not gone THAT far. He felt quite sure that Joan had not been faithless to him—yet. But when one's wife has a will and a way of her own one never knows the day of her nor the hour! And could he be so helpfully certain that the hour had not struck—oh, Lord, what's all the hubbub? Ranny shook the hot daze of suspicion out of his eyes for the moment and recalled that he was in the midst of a very furious polo game. There was the Argentine captain streaking far in advance toward the Tornadoes' goal. Ranny was unconsciously loping along in the wake of the pursuing field, in nowise as he could and should be riding.

The concerted appeal of the crowd slowly impressed itself upon his ears. "After him, Ranny!" In a flash the polo instinct burned the true situation into his brain. The American goal was threatened. And he, the star American player, was loping along like a portly professor exercising on the Central Park bridge path! On first thought he figured, "The deuce with the game! I'll go over right now and thrash Gratman!" On second thought, he'd try to save this goal, then attend to Gratman during the intermission. But the game of polo allows no time for second thoughts! He would be lucky to overtake the field, let alone the Argentine captain! Now, if he had only had Judy. Milkmaid was a bright and willing little mare, but Judy was as human as feet. The very physical action of digging his spurs into Milkmaid's ribs, or throwing his weight forward to give her running way, served to dispel the last of the distracting state of mind that tormented him. Ranny was every inch and every instinct the perfect polo madman—the cold blooded yet hot-headed, the sure yet reckless, Valkyrie of the long greens.

Fate of Six Miners in Flooded Mine a Mystery
Hazleton, Pa., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The fate of six miners entombed behind a tremendous rush of water 1200 feet under ground in the Tomhicken Colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company near here remained a mystery today.

The men were trapped yesterday afternoon when a nearby creek broke through its banks as a result of heavy rains, and flooded the mine. More than 100 other miners in the shaft heard the roar of the waters and scrambled to the surface in time to escape. Rescue crews worked throughout the night to extricate the entombed men, but today they had not succeeded in stopping the flow of water.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

JUDITH MARTIN, teaching at Pendleton University, is admitted by DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor, and ERIC WATERS, leader of the radical student faction.

DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN represents her interest in student affairs and her friendship for Eric, particularly after Eric is suspected of bootlegging.

MYRA ALDRICH is in love with Eric and jealous of Judith.

Dean Brown's wife has sought relief from the dean's tyranny in a secret love affair, which Judith discovers. When "KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, tries to blackmail Mrs. Brown, Judith asks Eric to silence him.

Shea's body is found under his car in a creek and Eric arrested as a material witness because a letter addressed to him is found in Shea's pocket.

Dean Brown posts placards of the mammoth religious rally to be held by EVANGELIST FORREST POOLE.

Several days after Eric's arrest, Judith goes home, to find him sitting on the front steps, whittling.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVIII

ERIC placed the absurd whistle at his mouth and blew a blast. Judith sat down weakly beside him on the step.

He rose, pulling her to her feet. "Follow me down the street a little way. Let's go for a ride. Parked it down there to avoid drawing crowds to your front door. Everybody knows my car."

Judith went down the sidewalk with him and climbed into the little car. Eric drove through the town, past the campus and out into the gravel road at law-breaking speed. When they were well into open country, he slowed down to a steady pace, and slouched in his seat, with one arm on the wheel.

"Now," he said, "tell me what you know about all this."

Judith stared at him. "I don't know anything. I don't even know what you're talking about."

Eric studied her face, only glancing away now and then to the road. They passed no vehicles.

"Then," he said, "if you can't explain it, I've lost my grip on sanity. The universe has turned into a madhouse."

Judith put her hand on his arm. "Just tell me what happened, as quickly as you can," she said. "I've waited long enough."

"Only this," he answered. "Mrs. Brown has ruined herself for life, in the eyes of at least two persons—in order to get me out of jail. She must be mad."

"What did she do?" asked Judith, bending forward.

"She came to the chief of police and the county attorney and told them the most prodigious lies. How anybody in the world could have believed them, I don't know."

"But they evidently did, for they released me on the strength of her story. And told the dean where to head in, too, without giving him any explanation. The old boy is raging. He had tasted blood, and he would have been satisfied with no less than the electric chair for me."

"Please start at the beginning," said Judith, "and tell the whole story."

"Very well," Eric answered. "This is what happened. You asked me where I had been on the day the murder was discovered. I had gone out after dark to scour the scene of the tragedy, to make sure that none of Shea's letters were left in the wreckage."

"But why?" interjected Judith. "What was in the letters?"

"What was in the letters?"

Judith touched his arm. "But why did they arrest you? What had you written him?"

"I didn't know," said Eric, "but, knowing Shea, I thought there might be evidence in them against me—as a whisky buyer, or against the dean's wife or against you."

"I went out after dark with a flashlight and looked the wreck over. Of course the letters weren't there. When I got back to town, the news was all over the campus that his letters had been found in his pocket and were being deciphered."

Judith touched his arm. "But why did they arrest you? What had you written him?"

Eric laughed. "I hadn't written him. As it turned out, however, he had written me, and not mailed the letter."

"In it, he warned me to keep out of his affairs or I'd regret it. That suggested to the sheriff that I might have a motive for bumping him."

Judith's eyes were on the place where the bruise had been, over his left eye. Its last traces were just disappearing. She dropped her eyes and said nothing.

They turned into a winding little road, with old-fashioned rail fences on either side. "I wasn't much worried," continued Eric, "though I hated the scandal. For, at any rate, they couldn't hang anything on me. They hadn't any evidence."

"But they evidently did, for they released me on the strength of her story. And told the dean where to head in, too, without giving him any explanation. The old boy is raging. He had tasted blood, and he would have been satisfied with no less than the electric chair for me."

"Please start at the beginning," said Judith, "and tell the whole story."

"But why?" interjected Judith. "What was in the letters?"

"What was in the letters?"

There, nobody would have meddled with me."

"That's a selfish view, Eric," said Judith, "but go on."

"I was amusing myself in their dirty little jail today, watching the roaches eat the bread and beans the jailer had brought for me, when the jailer came in, chewing tobacco and grinning."

"Go on," urged Judith.

"Come along, buddy," he said to me. "The chief wants to see you." I found the chief sitting at his desk, very solemn and uncomfortable.

"The chief waited for the jailer to go away, which he did, with many backward, curious glances and much spitting of tobacco. Then the chief said to me, 'We're going to turn you loose, Waters. Your alibi has been supplied.'"

"I looked at him in astonishment. I hadn't known they had gone so far as to look for an alibi for me. 'But before you go,' the chief continued, 'I want a little talk with you.'"

"Of course I answered, amiably, all the time wondering who the deuce could have come to my rescue. 'Look here, young fellow,' said the chief, shaking a fat finger at me, 'let me give you some good advice. It's time for you to straighten up, and not go getting into any more disgraceful scrapes round this town. My advice to you from now on is to lay off the wine and women, and stick to sons.'"

"Please elucidate, chief," I said. 'As for wine, I plead guilty to the soft impeachment. But women—' And there I made a Joseph-resting-to-Pharaphrase gesture."

"But the old boy just laughed, throwing his head far back and shaking all over."

"Cut out the bluffing, Waters," he admonished me. "I know the whole story, and your play-acting won't go down with me. What we're interested in now is your future behavior. The county attorney thinks it's safe to trust you, but I have my doubts. I told him I'd seen young devils of your sort before, many and many a time."

DRYS PLAN TO FIGHT MOVE TO NOMINATE WET

Say Movement is On to Name Wet Candidate for President

Washington, Nov. 17.—(AP)—A vigorous campaign to combat the "movement to nominate a wet candidate for the presidency and to insert a wet plank in the national party platform" has been mapped out for the Anti-Saloon League.

The organization's executive committee evolved three general projects to meet the "challenge" of modification forces "effectively" in the campaign leading up to the 1928 presidential race.

In this plan emphasis was placed upon efforts to reach "the indifferent voter with information on the issues involved, and to arouse the non-voter to the need for his exercise of the franchise to defeat the highly organized wet minority." It also contemplated immediate expansion of the league's "educational" program which has been relaxed since ratification of the 18th amendment, and invigoration of the organization activities.

Bein' able t' read between th' lines is a big help in formin' our opinions. With maw's barber, sister's pumps, father's bootlegger, an' brother's roadster, ther's goin' t' be some fun when th' modern family starts t' re-trench.

COMPTON NEWS

Compton—As a result of the special meeting of the Village Board called by President J. W. Banks, Monday evening of this week, action was taken to relieve the drainage situation in the Northeast quarter of the village. A new system will be laid out by the property owners, inlaid with seven inch tile. An outlet has been secured from L. W. Kutter. Work will begin on the project immediately.
William Johnson, section foreman on the C. M. & St. P. railroad at Roxbury, has been transferred to the Mendota section. He will move his family to Mendota as soon as conditions grant.
After spending the first quarter of the school year at the Ashton high school, Miss Irma and Ione Olson, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Olson have returned and entered the local high school.

Mrs. R. P. Thompson returned home after spending several days in Chicago with Otis Thompson and family.

Mrs. Paul Krings is visiting for a few days with her sister Mrs. Frye of Aurora.

Ed. Holdren who is employed in the Eber meat market at Mendota was here over the week end visiting his father, C. L. Holdren.
Lon Ikens of Superior, Wis., is here visiting for the forth coming week with his mother, Mrs. Josephine Ikens and sister, Mrs. Mae Archer.
Mrs. Clara Fairchild and daughter Gladys of Rockford called on former friends and relatives here last Friday.
Mr. and Mrs. Anton Haefner, Mrs. Ruth Carnahan and Mrs. Clara Corwin were in Ottawa shopping last Friday.

John S. Archer and son Don were in Aurora the later part of last week. Miss Jessie Nellis and brother, Sanford, of Dixon spent Sunday visiting friends in Aurora.

Green River Valley Conference basketball tournament will be played off Friday and Saturday of this week at Paw Paw high school's new gymnasium. The eight high schools comprising the entry list are: Franklin Grove, Compton, Lee, Paw Paw, Ashton, Lee Center, Steward and Kings. Friday afternoon Paw Paw will meet Steward for the initial tilt of the tournament. In the evening Kings and Compton will play their elimination game. Franklin Grove plays Ashton and Lee meets Lee Center. Paw Paw is given the edge over Steward, which will decide the foe for the winner of the Compton, Kings battle.

Compton will go into the tournament with the loss of a valuable player, in Glaser who has been out of school for a length of time which makes him ineligible. But none the less the return of Capt. Will Archer fills out the shoes left vacant by the venerable forward. The team which will take the floor for Compton against Kings will be A. Chason and Kaufman forwards; Walter, Center; Capt. Will Archer and Wayne Archer guards. LETS GO COMPTON!

Nordic Blood Changing Chileans as a Tribe

Santiago, Chile.—(AP)—A further infusion of Nordic blood into the Chilean race will be brought about if plans now under consideration by the Chilean colony here are developed.

Importation of 2,000 additional German families to settle in the rich agricultural regions of the South of Chile has been suggested.

The Chileans already are more or less a race apart as German and English blood has been mixed to a great extent with the Latin during many years. It is not unusual to find persons bearing such family names as Helfmann, Lundstedt, Walker, Martin, Edwards and O'Brien and O'Reilly, who cannot speak English.

The German and English colonies are large and their influence has had noticeable effects. The army is German trained and is uniformed in typically German style. The navy, on the other hand, is a miniature reproduction of Great Britain's.

Experiments show that it is possible to produce flour from blunders. The flour is said to be high in nutriment.

Staunch, Stylish Overcoats

For Boys of 8 to 18 Years
Swing—Dash—Pep—Warmth—Value

Quality

Enduring fabrics that stand up under hard wear and make good with boys and with mothers. Fine, heavy fancy overcoatings, cassimeres and chinchillas.

Style

As much swing and dashing style as in our overcoats for men and young men. They're built to suit live, red-blooded boys' activities.

Warmth

Real protection against Winter's icy blasts. Well finished and warmly lined and interlined. Cut full and roomy, good length—SOME Overcoat Values at these moderate prices.

$8.90 to $16.75
